

Why do you Look for the Living among the Dead?
Luke 24:1-12, 13-27

Friends, I don't know if you've noticed or not - but Zombies are still in. For whatever reason, it seems that the undead have struck a chord with the living - and while vampires and the Twilight movies are long gone, zombies are still around.

Things were really rolling back in 2013 when Brad Pitt and Paramount Studios did World War Z – so when an A-list actor and a major studio get into it, well it's obvious that what started out years ago as a low budget B-movie trend has grown into something much bigger.

Case in point, people still like to dress up as zombies and hang out together at zombie parties – even when it's not Halloween...

And popular television series “the Walking Dead”- a show about surviving after society has been decimated by a zombie apocalypse is going into its 9th season!

Furthermore... if you are having a hard time getting your teenaged zombie enthusiast to focus and read classic literature – don't worry, you can get them the zombie version of Jane Austin's “Pride and Prejudice.”

Friends, zombies are still in... the living still seem to be fascinated by the undead.

Now if I was to offer my own educated guess as to why this is, I would suggest it's because, we are becoming more and more disillusioned with the things that we believed would give us a life and make us happy.

For example, when my parents were young it was pretty much guaranteed that if you went to University and graduated with a Bachelor's Degree – you would get a good job...

..which would lead to a good career and a good salary, that would allow you to provide for a family and save for your retirement – and this was a good life and it would make you happy.

We'd still like to believe this is possible today – but so many things have happened since then which say otherwise...

Instead, we are discovering – to our dismay; that the debt load needed to get all the schooling you require, the economic uncertainty and its effects on the job market, the sacrifices you must make to start a business or advance your career, the broken relationships along the way – all these things and many more factors.... are all slowly but surely - draining us of the life and happiness we expected to find.

And we're trapped because what other option do we have? Walk away and leave it all behind? Not really. We've made commitments, people are counting on us, and what else could we do to find happiness, what else can we do to pay the bills and sustain life?

So we continue on, hoping that somehow we will find happiness and life in this rat race in spite of everything that says otherwise.

And if truth be told, it kind of feels like we are dying alive – like we are the living dead, like we are zombies.

So friends – I would say that zombies are still in... because we can relate to feeling like a zombie.

And that's why I also think, that what the angels said to the women in the tomb is so relevant for us today...

“Why do you look for the living among the dead?”

Friends, if the resurrection of Jesus says anything to us this morning... at the very least it confronts us with this question and it requires that we give an explanation- an answer as to why we continue to live the way we do - now that the tomb is empty.

“Why do you look for the living among the dead?”

Why are you doing what you are doing? Why do you live the way you live?

Friends, the women would have answered that they had come to the tomb to do was in accordance with the proper traditions and burial customs of their people, to anoint Jesus' body with spices as a way to show respect, honor the dead and preserve their memory.

Or even simpler perhaps that it was all about their relationship with someone they loved.

Fine... but now that the tomb is empty what will you do?

And Peter would have answered that he had come to the tomb looking to see if what the women had said was true, that he was investigating – looking for clues that might reveal and explain what had taken place.

Ok... but now that you found an empty tomb what will you do?

And the disciples who were leaving Jerusalem, walking back to Emmaus, would have answered that sadly they were going back to what they had always done, waiting and hoping for another Messiah who would be able to deliver them from the Romans.

I see... but what do you think it means that the tomb was found empty?

“Why do you look for the living among the dead?”

Friends, we might find that our answers are very similar to the women, to Peter and those walking to Emmaus.

Like the women, we may find that we live our lives the way we do because of tradition or custom or culture.

It's what everyone else is doing, this is the way it is, you go to school, get the job, pursue the career, fall in love have a family, save for retirement, try to stay healthy so you can enjoy your retirement... that's just how it goes.

Or we might say that we do what we do - because life is about relationships and those whom you love and that's all that matters.

Or maybe we are more like Peter, a bit impulsive, bold, and stubborn – we're going to carve our own path, we're going to see for ourselves – we won't accept it or do it just because someone else says so. We're going through life investigating and trying to figure it out for ourselves...

Or perhaps we might discover that we share more in common with the disciples who travelling down the road to Emmaus - because we also have travelled a little ways down the road of life.

And just like those disciples, we started out with such high hopes and great expectations about what life could offer, but it didn't turn out like we expected it to.

So now... what we do, how we live, is characterized by regret, bitterness, cynicism, and a determination that we won't allow ourselves to get fooled again.

I don't know friends, can you relate to what I talking about here?

Can you see how the angels' words confront us and cause us to look at, and give an answer as to why we live our lives the way we do?

"Why are we looking for the living among the dead?" Did you ever consider that could be a phrase to describe how live our lives – looking for life and happiness where we will not find it...

And friends, now that we have seen and heard that the tomb is empty – can we really go on living as we always have?

Especially when what we are looking for is life! Especially when we aren't really or fully finding it in how we currently live...

Friends, the empty tomb and the angels' words mean that it is possible for us to start looking for life elsewhere and it is possible that we can find it!

But... we need to stop looking for the living among the dead, and start looking for life among the living - we must look for the risen Lord Jesus. (Not the historical Jesus, or the good teacher, or the social activist)

Now telling you to look for the risen Jesus sounds all well and good, but what does that actually mean and can we actually do that?

Because the fact is that our risen Lord has ascended to Heaven; and He is there right now... reigning with God the Father until the day when He will return to make all things new. So we can't physically go looking for the risen Jesus to find the life we desire.

However the good news is, as Romans 8:11 says, "If the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead is living in you, he who raised Christ from the dead will also give life to your mortal bodies because of his Spirit who lives in you."

In other words friends, the Spirit of God which raised Jesus back to life can also live in us and give us life!

So we don't have to physically go looking for the risen Jesus to find life, we can look for Him spiritually by opening ourselves up to the working and the power of His Holy Spirit.

In fact if we were to keep on reading in Luke 24, we would see the risen Jesus appear to his twelve disciples in Jerusalem and tells them "I am going to send you what my Father has promised; but stay in the city until you have been clothed with power from on high." (Luke 24:49)

And just at the difference it made in the lives of the disciples when they had the life of the Holy Spirit in them.

We need look no farther back than the events of Good Friday. Remember Jesus needed to wrestle in prayer with His heavenly Father about going to the cross; but the disciples couldn't even stay awake to pray with Him.

And when Jesus handed himself over to the religious leaders - the disciples ran away; when Peter was identified as being one of the Jesus' followers - he denied knowing Him; and when Jesus appears to them in Jerusalem they just a handful of frightened scared men who don't know what they should do next.

However - once the Holy Spirit had been poured out on them they are no longer scared and frightened – in fact Peter boldly gets up in front of a crowd in Jerusalem and says to them:

“Fellow Israelites, listen to this: Jesus of Nazareth was a man accredited by God to you by miracles, wonders and signs, which God did among you through him, as you yourselves know. This man was handed over to you by God’s deliberate plan and foreknowledge; and you, with the help of wicked men, put him to death by nailing him to the cross. But God raised him from the dead, freeing him from the agony of death, because it was impossible for death to keep its hold on him.” (Acts 2:22-24)

What a difference! To be transformed into someone who would stand in front of a crowd and charge them with killing the Messiah...

The disciples are now full of the Holy Spirit, full of life and their lives are very different – they are no longer looking for the living among the dead, but they are proclaiming Christ's resurrection from the dead.

And friends, what happened to the disciples can become a reality in our lives as well... and quite honestly we need it to become a reality in our lives – and not just because it feels like we are the living dead...

But because the truth is that unless we have the life of the Spirit of Jesus in us - we really are the living dead, not actual zombies, but actual sinners; people who do not believe in, or thank, or show love or obey God... people who are constantly turning good things into god things, and who are continually looking for life in the creation... instead of in the Creator – and all this leads to our death and destruction, both individually and for the planet.

Friends – why continue to look for the living among the dead? The tomb is empty! You will not find what you are looking for there.

But you will find the life that you want and need in the Spirit of Jesus Christ, and He is willing and waiting to send His Spirit work to in you if you pray and ask Him for it.

That's what Peter told the crowd in Jerusalem all those years ago and it's still true today

“Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins. And you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.” (Acts 2:38)

Friends, we must turn away from seeking life from the creation – life comes from God alone who raised Jesus Christ from the dead by power the Holy Spirit.

And if you believe what you've heard this morning friends – then take these words with you this week “why do you look for the living among the dead” and keep them in the back of your mind.

As you go about your day to day business ask the Holy Spirit to reveal to you if you are trying to find life and happiness and fulfilment in good things instead of in God, in the creation instead of the Creator, so that you can instead ask Jesus to forgive you and ask the Holy Spirit to give you the life and happiness and fulfilment you need and are looking for.

Friends let us not look for the living among the dead – but let us be living proof of the power and the work of the Spirit that raised our Lord from the dead! Amen.
